Product information "PCI Express Card, 2x Serial" from LogiLink

LogiLink PCI Express Card extends your PC by two serial ports to connect RS232 compatible devices. It is mounted into an available PCI slot of your PC and identified by current operating systems because of the plug-and-play (PnP) technology. The automatic IRQ addressing prevents address conflicts. The internal and external connections are standardized and work in any PC.

The product information provided is for reference purposes only. Technical specifications, photos, descriptions and prices may change without prior notice. The manufacturer and seller are not responsible for possible data discrepancies or typographical errors. We recommend checking the current information before purchasing.
