The Lanberg bulk cable is designed to provide reliable connectivity with its robust UTP technology. Its copper conductors ensure performance and durability, while the 0.55 mm lagging thickness and 0.5 mm conductor thickness contribute to effective signal transmission. With HDPE insulation at 0.9 mm and a solid construction, this bulk cable meets your networking needs efficiently. It supports frequencies up to 100 MHz, making it suitable for applications within the CAT 5/5e category. Compliance with multiple standards, including EAC and CPR, underscores its reliability and adherence to safety protocols.
