The Lanberg patch cable is designed to deliver reliable performance for a variety of networking applications. This CAT 5e cable features UTP technology and supports tested frequencies of up to 100 MHz to ensure stable data transmission. It is crafted with Copper-Clad Aluminium conductors and includes HDPE conductor insulation, providing a balance of flexibility and durability. With molded and snagless connectors, this cable mitigates the risk of cable damage during installation or use. The stranded design enhances adaptability for different settings, while the indication of length makes it easy to determine the right fit. Its PVC jacket protects the internal components, making this cable suitable for casual and professional use.
