The Lanberg PCU6-10CC-0150-BK patch cable is engineered for reliable network performance. Designed with UTP technology and crafted from Copper-Clad Aluminium conductors, this cable ensures a smooth data transfer experience. Its length indication feature allows for easy management, while the robust PVC jacket and HDPE conductor insulation provide added durability for daily use. The cable supports frequencies of up to 250 MHz and adheres to ANSI/TIA/EIA 568-B standards, making it a suitable choice for various networking needs. This CAT 6 cable is equipped with male RJ-45 connectors on both ends, delivering a secure connection without snagging. The molded construction enhances longevity, and the stranded design promotes flexibility in tight spaces. With the Lanberg patch cable, seamless connectivity is within reach, whether for home networking or office environments.
