There is always a time in our life, when we have to connect a device to mains, but the outlet is either too far or the access to it is very limited. Lanberg hurries to offer power strips that will save you in such situations by providing stable power to all connected loads. These high-quality products in Lanberg's extensive portfolio have conductors made of 100% copper, providing greater stability and reliability of operation. You can connect and supply up to 3 devices, using French CEE 7/5 sockets of this product. The safety aspect of these very handy power strips was by no means ignored - each device has been fitted with protection against child interference.
