The Edmontosaurus was a duck-billed nomad who loved to roam - a perfect companion for long road trips. Known habitats include prehistoric Canada, birthday parties, and anywhere dino-loving kids are at play.

The Edmontosaurus really is a giant at a height of 13 meters. But it's really friendly. You can see that right away. The Edmontosaurus is also rather pretty: it has a striking cockscomb on its head and a long neck. Its favorite thing to do is to take a leisurely stroll through the woods and meadows and have a nibble on the bushes there. But because it's so big, it takes ages to finish its meal of leaves and twigs. Maybe you can keep it company?
