This network video recorder (NVR) features an 8-channel recording capability, making it suitable for small to medium-sized surveillance setups. It is housed in a compact 1U chassis, which allows for efficient use of space in various installation environments. The device supports H.265+ video compression technology, which enhances encoding efficiency and reduces data storage costs by minimizing the file sizes of recorded and transmitted video without compromising image quality.

With a resolution of up to 4K for viewing and playback, the unit ensures high-quality video output. It includes support for third-party IP cameras, offering flexibility in camera selection and system integration. The NVR is equipped with one SATA interface for HDD connection, with a maximum capacity of up to 6TB, providing ample storage for recorded video.

Additionally, the device features VGA and HDMI outputs, enabling simultaneous video output to multiple displays. Network connectivity is facilitated through a single RJ-45 10M/100M Ethernet interface, supporting network-based monitoring and management. The unit also includes two USB
