

GENESIS Radium 251 White Game console microphone

Model: NGM-2355

Manufacturer: GENESIS

EAN: 5901969449730

Product Code: 1715735

R1,801

Do you have a small budget, but you know perfectly well that your voice deserves more than mediocrity? We think so too! The GENESIS Radium 251 is a condenser microphone that combines solid construction, good sound quality and readiness to perform right out of the box. Set on a classic arm, it will be perfect for any gamer's desk. If you want to enter the world of streaming, podcasting, or simply sound clear while playing online - this is your new weapon.

Your voice without compromise

The Radium 251 offers surprisingly good recorded voice quality considering its price shelf. The microphone is designed to collect sound cleanly, with perceptible depth, eliminating unwanted background noise. It's ideal for voice conversations, content creation or recording podcasts where clarity of speech is important. Thanks to its cardioid directional characteristic, the microphone

The product information provided is for reference purposes only. Technical specifications, photos, descriptions and prices may change without prior notice. The manufacturer and seller are not responsible for possible data discrepancies or typographical errors. We recommend checking the current information before purchasing.
itworkup.co.za | sales@itworkup.co.za | +27 (11)541-9950

focuses on your voice, ignoring what's going on in the background.

Full control and zero delays

Don't waste your time guessing whether you can be heard correctly. The Radium 251 offers real-time, zero-latency listening which allows you to monitor sound quality in real time and catch potential errors. This is especially important during live broadcasts or recordings, where maximum precision counts. In addition, the microphone is equipped with aGain knob, which allows you to quickly adjust the sensitivity without having to go into system settings or external applications. And you? You're in full control - exactly as it should be.

RGB that plays along with you

At GENESIS, we know that hardware should not only work, but also look. That's why we've equipped the Radium 251 microphone with subtle but stylish RGB backlighting that accentuates your gaming rig and gives it a unique character. Whether you're creating at night or streaming in full daylight, your microphone will always look like a true gamer's tool.

Everything you need in the kit

The GENESIS Radium 251 isn't just a microphone - it's a complete set ready to go. Unlike the Radium 250, you'll find a sturdy microphone arm that lets you position the microphone any way you want without taking up valuable desk space. This gives you more space for your mouse, keyboard or other accessories. You also get a pop filter that reduces unpleasant "blast voices," improving the clarity of your recordings. The cable ties, on the other hand, help you stay organized and prevent tangled wires. Details? Yes, because it's the details that really make a difference.

The product information provided is for reference purposes only. Technical specifications, photos, descriptions and prices may change without prior notice. The manufacturer and seller are not responsible for possible data discrepancies or typographical errors. We recommend checking the current information before purchasing.
itworkup.co.za | sales@itworkup.co.za | +27 (11)541-9950