The Lanberg patch cable is designed to deliver reliable performance and connection quality for your networking needs. Constructed with Copper-Clad Aluminum (CCA) conductors and HDPE conductor insulation, this cable ensures efficient data transfer with a tested frequency of up to 250 MHz. Its snagless design and molded connectors prevent potential damage, making it a durable choice for both home and professional environments.

With a cable category of CAT 6, this patch cable is suitable for various applications, ensuring seamless networking capabilities. The cable features length indication for easy organization and management, while also complying with EMC, RoHS, and ANSI/TIA/EIA 568-B standards, making it a responsible choice for users focused on performance and environmental considerations.
