The Lanberg patch cable is designed for high-performance connectivity, ensuring reliable data transmission in various networking environments. With a category CAT 6 specification and a tested frequency of up to 250 MHz, this cable provides a robust solution for both home and office use, allowing for seamless multimedia streaming and fast Internet access. Its snagless design enhances durability, while the molded connectors ensure a secure fit in RJ-45 ports, minimizing the risk of accidental disconnection. Crafted from Copper-Clad Aluminium (CCA) conductors and featuring HDPE conductor insulation, the cable offers optimal signal quality and longevity. The PVC jacket material provides additional protection against wear and tear. Length indication further contributes to convenience, enabling easy organization and installation for any networking setup.
