The Lanberg patch cable meets the demands of modern networking requirements. With a Category 6 specification, this cable enables high-speed data transmission with a tested frequency of up to 250 MHz. The stranded construction enhances flexibility and reduces the risk of tangling, making it easier to route in tight spaces. The PVC jacket material adds to durability, ensuring long-lasting performance in various environments.

Equipped with RJ-45 connectors on both ends, this cable ensures a secure and reliable connection for various networking applications, whether at home or in an office setting. Its American Wire Gauge of 24 offers a balance of conductivity and strength, making it suitable for both professional and personal use. Choose the Lanberg patch cable for efficient and stable network connectivity.
