The Lanberg CAT 6 patch cable is designed for reliable and efficient connectivity, suitable for various networking applications. Constructed with Copper-Clad Aluminium conductors and HDPE conductor insulation, this cable ensures clear signal transmission and durability. With a tested frequency of 250 MHz, it supports high-speed data transfer, making it an ideal choice for home and office environments. Featuring a PVC jacket, this cable offers protection against wear and tear while maintaining flexibility for easy installation. The snagless design prevents cable snags during installation, and the molded connectors provide durability. This patch cable adheres to the ANSI/TIA/EIA 568-B standards, ensuring consistent quality and compatibility with various networking devices.
