The Lanberg PCF6A-10CU-0050-S is a patch cable designed for connectivity in demanding network environments. With a category rating of CAT 6a, this cable supports tested frequencies of up to 500 MHz, ensuring robust and reliable data transmission. Constructed with a durable aluminum-magnesium braid shield and low smoke zero halogen outer jacket, it offers shielding against interference while being safer for installations requiring low halogen emissions. Featuring RJ-45 connectors on both ends, this cable provides a secure and stable connection with its snagless design, making it a choice for professional networking needs. The molded structure along with stranded construction enhances flexibility and durability, catering to various installation scenarios.
