The Radium 750D is a dynamic microphone designed for gamers, streamers and content creators who expect not only top sound quality, but also maximum functionality. Thanks to its state-of-the-art solutions and rich features, the Radium 750D works well both in the home studio and during live broadcasts, guaranteeing reliability in any situation.

Professional sound in all conditions

The microphone's dynamic design effectively reduces ambient noise, delivering clear, natural sound without unwanted distortion. This solution is ideal for those who want to sound professional without having to adapt the room to improve its acoustics.

Free connection - you decide

Two connectors - USB and XLR - give you complete freedom in choosing the equipment you use the microphone with. The USB connector allows for immediate operation right out of the box (e.g. with a computer or console), while the XLR allows you to connect the microphone to an audio interface and enter an even higher level of sound quality. The Radium 750D will always fit into your setup.

Monitor your voice

If you choose to connect a microphone via USB - the built-in headphone output with volume control will allow you to listen in real time, so you can react and adjust settings immediately - no guesswork, no delay.

A microphone that listens to you

Adjusting the microphone gain(Gain) allows you to match the strength of the signal to your voice and environment. The result? A professional recording without distortion and without the frustration of quiet, unintelligible audio.

Mute always at hand

Important phone during streaming? When the Radium 750D is plugged into a USB port it's not a problem! With the Mute function, you can instantly mute the microphone with a single press. It's a practical solution that saves time and provides discretion when you need it.

Stability first

Included with the microphone you will find a Thulium 350D desk stand. Its heavy base guarantees full stability of the microphone setting. In addition, the stand is designed to eliminate vibrations, which in turn translates into greater comfort and even better sound.

More order, more convenience

In addition to the tripod, the package also includes practical cable management ties that will help you organize your workspace to prevent tangled wires. Such an organized stand means greater efficiency and comfort while gaming, streaming, or working.
